Services provided by hackers and their prices

- DDoS: Hackers who provide Distributed Denial of Service attacks charge according to the duration and bandwidth of the attack. The average cost for a DDoS attack is $33.

- Social media account hacking: In this attack, the hacker gains access to the passwords of the victim's social media accounts. They give the passwords to the person who buys this service. This service costs around $295 per platform/account. The cost might vary with different platforms.

- Email Hacking: In this type of attack, the hacker steals password of the victim to gain access of the email. The they either give it to the person who buys this or they themselves break in and access the data. The price for this attack averages at $309.

- Computer and phone hacking: Here, the attacker break into the system to deploy malware or steal data from the targeted Computer or phone. The cost of this attack is $441. The cost remains same for all the OS.

- Website Hacking: This attack consists of gaining access to the admin panel or gaining access to database of the website. This attack costs $507.

- Attacks on School servers: In this attack, the grades of students are altered. This attack can be conducted on schools and universities. This attack is very common amongst students. Students pay up to $676 for this attack.

- Personal Attacks: A personal attack can include public defamation, financial theft and legal trouble. Most hackers gain access to the computer of the victim and try to depict the victim as a buyer of child pornography. This attack costs around $708,

- Controlling device remotely: In this attack, the hacker gains the access of a computer or a mobile device and controls it remotely. This attack costs around $1000.

- Package deals: There are many package deals available on hacking websites. Once such example is, breaking into someone's phone and computer and finding the information which is required by the buyer. This attack costs around $2320.

- All the prices on the website are given in bitcoins.

- Hackers only accept the job when they think that they can pull it off.

- The payment is to be made upfront as all the hackers demand money before they start working.

- Some hackers offer refund if the attack isn't successful.

- Sometimes, hacking prices vary on the ranking and experience of hackers on the websites and forums.

- Sometimes, the law enforcement uses these websites as honeypots. There is always a risk that a buyer falls victim to the honeypot websites and gets tracked by the law enforcement.

- Some websites trough which we can hire a hacker are:

    - RENT - A – HACKER

    - Hacker for Hire

    - The hell hacking forum

    - The realdeal Marketplace